About This Game

Strange things are happening. Time to send tweets and kick @$$! And we're all outta WiFi.
Take on hordes of enemies in this terrifying First-Person Shooter with an immersive and creepy atmosphere.

Jump Scares and Action all over the place, as many elements work together to bring you an experience that will send shivers down your spine. It's not shooting all the time either, you're only badass 50% of the time. The other 50%, you're either pretending to be good at parkour, or more likely, running away in terror.

Features

- Satisfying Gunz & Limited Ammo (Use weapons wisely)
- Freaky Creatures
- Diverse Levels
- Creepy Atmosphere
- Spectacular Explosions
- Consequence (1-Hit Death. Restart Level on Death. 3 Lives then Restart Game)

What's the matter, 'fraid?

Helpful Information

What Each Part Does ▲

- Part 1. Your Names. Your names will appear in the title of the trust document. You'll also automatically be named the grantors and trustees of your trust.
- Part 2. Trustees. Here you name someone to take over as trustee of your trust after the death or incapacity of both grantors.
- Part 3. Property to Be Held in Trust. Here you list all the items of property you intend to hold in trust.
- Part 4. Beneficiaries of Trust Property. Here each of you designates beneficiaries for the property you listed in Part 3.
- Part 5. Residuary Beneficiary. Here you name someone to receive any trust property that doesn't go to a beneficiary you specifically named in Part 4. (If you've already stated who will inherit all trust property, you will skip this part.)
- Part 6. Property Management for Beneficiaries. If you're leaving trust property to anyone who may be under 35 years old at your death, here you can arrange for someone to manage the property for the beneficiary.
- Part 7. Names Listed in Your Trust Document. Here you can provide additional information about the people whose names are listed in your trust document, including information on how your successor trustee can contact them.

The dashboard is divided into several sections:

- Backlog: A vertical list of tasks categorized by 'Feature', 'Test', 'Performance', and 'Security'. Each task is represented by a colored circle with a number indicating its priority or count.
- Product Metrics: A central grid of red and green squares representing a sprint plan. A green circle highlights a specific area of the grid. Below the grid, it shows 'Tech Effort: 20' and 'Design Effort: 0'. Buttons for 'Add to Sprint' and 'Discard' are present.
- Next Sprint: A panel on the right showing team capacity. It includes icons for communication, settings, and security. Below these icons, it lists 'Team Capacity Per Sprint' with values for Dev (20), Sales (3), Design (14), and Operations (6).
- Bottom Bar: A navigation bar with various icons (checklist, mail, user, shopping bag, etc.) and a central display showing '$194,981' and 'Milestone B'. On the right, it displays key performance indicators: Visitors /m (2,598), Total Users (342), Signups /m (111), Revenue /m ($15,840), Churn /m (73), and Expenditure /m ($45,957).

this is a must have for any WW2 navy geeks..ultra realistic, tough missions, great graphics, detailed modelling. I recommend the Pt BOAT gold pack as both original and expansion are worth the price at $14.99. best looking skin out the dlc's. Autumn Park Mini Golf is 99 cents and it's still a better game than Tower Unite. being a flying panda has never been so challenging before.. Perfect addition to Steam Library.. Rarely, if ever, have I been so certain that I would enjoy a game as quickly as I was with MacGuffin. Inside of two minutes I had already purchased a copy for a friend, and we were both laughing our donkeys off!

The concept of MacGuffin is that you must break into a crumbling Japanese nuclear plant and find an item known as a MacGuffin. (Many of you are already in on the joke, right?) The puzzles are silly easy, and not intended to interfere with progress. Clearly, MacGuffin is a satire of the satirical The Stanley Parable, but infinitely funnier (which is in no way a criticism of TSP.) If you liked Stanley for the humor, you'll LOVE MacGuffin for the same reason. (BUT, if you are unable to laugh at yourself, you may find it hard to laugh at MacGuffin as much as others might.)

Pop culture references have perhaps never been as ever present as in MacGuffin, from Nixon and what I believe is the song Funkytown, to the dead-solid best uses of the international NO symbol ever created. This game is simply hilarious, and worth more than the pittance being charged. Much of the humor is hidden or subtly sophisticated(?), and is well worth your time to find.

I only have two issues. One is that there is no SAVE feature, and there are SO MANY hilarious screenshots to be posted that I found myself starting over repeatedly (which is maybe the BEST problem ever!) The other is that the gameplay locks at various points (but not menu access. This would lead me to believe that is was intentional, except that the locking has occurred in three places, one quite early.) But since the game is actually the journey rather than the destination, the locking takes away rather little from the experience.

And while MacGuffin is a short game (how short can't be determined until more info about the locking is shared by the DEVs), but for this rock-bottom price and its high degree of replayability, it's well worth your time and money.

4.5/5 or 9/10 or 90/100 or 934/1000

Thank you.

10/10 incredible game. All the jank and clunkiness just makes it better imho.. Patterns is such a great game. You can let your creativity flow. You can build whatever you want, whether is be a giant castle or just something simple like a small house. You can also build things such as working rockets, as seen in the trailer. I also recommend to play this game with friends if your friend has this game too. If you don't feel like building, you can still mess around with friends by building rockets, some bombs, etc. Overall, I give this game an 8.5/10. If you choose to buy this game, have fun!. I like this game, people dont probably read the fact that this is a STAND ALONE PACK, so why buy it if its a pack. The trainz standalone packs dont have surveyor.. From all the micro-payment games this is by far the worst. simple things take long or cost "diamonds".. A mediocre puzzle platformer rendered unplayable by unskippable cinematics.

Possibly appropriate for small children.. Honestly this game is good.

pros-nice graphics(better then infinite warfares:)

Nice music actually shave beards

free 2 play

good game

cons-not much other then your going to play this game for like 20minutes-1 hour game is 8.5/10. Played through, Didn't Enjoy. I explain why in depth in my first impression video https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=QySI_9g6SSI. GIVE ME MY MONEY BACK! you wait 20 min for a game and the player base is about 10 people max.. Small but interesting game. I couldn't get too far into it however, the UI was a little frustrating and the gameplay itself is pretty much the same as Galaga. I can't say I enjoyed it too much though.
